JENNIFER RODRIGUEZ

Executive Director

Youth Law Center

Jennifer Rodriguez, J.D., is Executive Director of the Youth Law Center (YLC) and a leading advocate for transforming foster care and juvenile justice systems across the country so youth can thrive. Jennifer spent many years of her childhood in foster care and juvenile justice facilities, and has spent most of her life advocating to ensure justice, compassion and opportunity for youth touched by these systems. Jennifer's advocacy has resulted in significant national policy, practice and culture changes. She joined the Youth Law Center as an attorney in 2007 after eight years working at the California Youth Connection, a nationally recognized foster youth advocacy organization. Jennifer was appointed by President Obama to the National Commission to Eliminate Child Abuse and Neglect Fatalities, which released a report promoting strengthening families parenting the most vulnerable children.

YOUTH LAW CENTER

Quality Parenting Initiative

Launched in 2008 by the Youth Law Center, the Quality Parenting Initiative (QPI) is a national movement for foster care systems change, committed to ensuring that all children in care have excellent parenting and lasting relationships so they can thrive and grow.

Today, QPI leads and provides advocacy support to network that includes 80 sites and 10 states comprising of children and youth, birth and foster families, foster care agency leadership and staff, judges, legal professionals, policymakers, adolescent development experts, and other community stakeholders all committed to ensuring every child in foster care receives the best possible care and support.

01

Consistent excellent parenting and meaningful relationships are the most important services we can provide to children and youth in foster care. Every policy, practice action, and statement the system adopts should strengthen parenting skills and relationships.

Research on child, youth, and brain development and the effects of trauma not only demonstrates the importance of parenting and positive relationships but also provides guidance on how best to support them. Agency policy and practice should be informed by research.

The individuals most affected by policies and practices are in the best position to design and implement change so that systems ensure excellent parenting and meaningful relationships for children who enter their care.

QPI THEORY OF CHANGE

QPI is a Change Movement

People who do the work know what needs to be changed and how to change it.

People are loyal to the things they create.

People will implement change when they understand why they are implementing it.

Lived Experience: Improved practices that involve youth and families in decision-making processes.

Transition Planning: Policies and protocols to eliminate abrupt moves and reduce the need for any moves at all by focusing on child-centered placement practices.

Sibling Connections: Policies and protocols to prioritize maintaining sibling relationships, and practices to maintain connections if that isn't possible.

Normalcy: Allowing children and youth to live normal lives, guided by developmental research.

Lasting Relationships: Supporting relationships between families and youth, even after the youth leaves care.
